TO RE-OPEN MONTEZUMA

tel is said to be Col. W. S. Hopewell of Albuquerque, the well known railroad promoter and capitalist. Upon their arrival in the city from the east Mr. and Mrs. Bowen were met here by appointment by Col. Hopewell, and when they departed yesterday for the east, they were accompanied by him. The party will first go to Denver and then to Chicago.

Mr. Bowen was formerly a resident of Las Vegas, at the time the Montezuma hotel was open, and for a time was superintendent of the local electric line, when the cars ran out to the hot springs. It is said that if the hotel is re-opened, that the trolley system will again be extended out there, and falling in this then an electric motor car will be put on the line, using of course the tracks of the Santa Fe railway between this city and the springs.

The Montezuma hotel was closed by the railway company about five years ago or just after its El Tovar hotel at the Grand Canyon was opened. The reason for this was obvious, for it is apparent the railroad feared the local hotel and resort might detract from its Grand Canyon hostelry, hence sacrificed the Las Vegas hotel for the one at the Grand Canyon because of the long haul to that point, which would make more money for the railroad company. While a part of the furniture in the Montezuma hotel has been sold since it was closed, it is said that most of the furnishings remain intact and that it would require but a small outlay to make it ready for occupancy again.

A strange part of the negotiations to get hold of this hotel again, is that James Abbott and Mr. Bowen are working for separate interests and it is said the rivalry between them to close a deal for their respective interests is very keen.
